MISSIONARY BOXES.

For many years the ladies of our churches have helped this Society and cheered the homes of many of its missionaries, with boxes of clothing and other useful articles. The continuance of these favors is earnestly solicited. To secure their satisfactory preparation and just distribution, attention is invited to the following suggestions:

Boxes for Designated Families.

Let the association or individual proposing to prepare a box write to the Secretaries, at the Bible House, for the designation and description of a family. Such facts can usually be given as will make it unnecessary to correspond also with the missionary. If work is undertaken for a family not named from the Bible House, let the Secretaries be at once notified of that fact, that several associations may not be providing for the same household.

When the box is nearly ready, let the address for freight—which is not always the missionary's post-office address, and which may have been changed since his designation—be learned, either from the Secretaries or the missionary himself.

Let the box, plainly and indelibly marked, and thoroughly secured against hard usage by the way, be put in charge of responsible forwarders who will give their receipt. It is not desirable that these designated boxes go by way of the Bible House.

Let a list of the contents be mailed to the missionary, with notice of the line by which the box is sent, the date of starting, and the address of the person to whom he may direct his letter of acknowledgment.

Notify the Secretaries, also, of the forwarding; giving, not a list of the articles, but their estimated value, for acknowledgment in The Home Missionary. In this letter inclose such sum for freight charges as the donors are willing to contribute. These charges cannot be known or paid until the box reaches its destination. The actual expense will be reported by the missionary, and paid in his next draft from the office. Experience shows that it is not wise to send money in the box.

Undesignated Boxes.

By reason of sickness, fire, or other unforeseen events, a family sometimes needs immediate supplies. Besides the aid for designated families, therefore, it is desired that boxes of substantial outer and under clothing, housekeeping goods, etc., be placed at the disposal of the Secretaries.

Put into each of these boxes a list of its contents, with the name of the association or individual from whom it comes, and the address of the person to whom the missionary may send his letter of acknowledgment. Mark the box, "American Home Missionary Society, Bible House, Astor Place, New York." Add the name of the place from which it comes. Mail to the Secretaries a letter, stating the time when, and the line by which the box was sent, and its estimated value. Inclose money for freight; also a list of contents, to guide in the assignment of the box. Be careful to state the size of the adults, and the ages and sex of children (if any) for whom the clothing it intended, as boxes are not opened at the office. Not every article may be fitted to the family receiving it, but neighboring missionaries are in the way of making such exchanges with each other, that everything will find its place and use.

Boxes no Part of a Missionary's Salary.

Boxes of clothing form no part of a missionary's regular appropriation. The Society needs the same amount of money, therefore, in order to meet promptly its stipulations with its missionaries, as if no boxes were forwarded; and it would be no favor to a missionary to receive a box, if, as a consequence of it, the amount of money that would otherwise be sent him must be proportionately diminished.

We trust the friends of the Home Missionary cause, therefore, will everywhere see to it that they give none the less money, in consequence of their giving other things that are needful and convenient. We hope, on the contrary, their sympathies will be so awakened in the preparation of the smaller gift, that they will feel it to be their privilege, not only to continue, but also to enlarge the greater.

FORM OF A BEQUEST.

I bequeath to my executors the sum of dollars, in trust, to pay over the same in after my decease, to the person who, when the same is payable, shall act as Treasurer of the American Home Missionary Society, formed in the city of New York, in the year eighteen hundred and twenty-six, to be applied to the charitable uses and purposes of said Society, and under its direction.

THE HOME MISSIONARY

Is published monthly by the Society. Price, 50 cents a year, in advance.

FORTY-SEVENTH ANNIVERSARY

OF THE

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

PUBLIC services were held on Sabbath evening, May 4th, 1873, in the Broadway Tabernacle Church, New York.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. WILLIAM M. TAYLOR, D.D., pastor of the church, and a sermon was preached by Rev. THEODORE D. WOOLSEY, D.D., LL.D., the President of the Society, from 1 Corinthians ix. 16: "Woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel;" and Romans xv. 20: "Yea, so have I strived to preach the gospel, not where Christ was named, lest I should build on another man's foundation."

On Wednesday, May 7th, the Society met at its Rooms, in the Bible House, at 4 o'clock, P. M.

Rev. GEORGE B. BACON, D.D., presided, and the meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. WILLIAM I. BUDINGTON, D.D., of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Treasurer's Report was read by WILLIAM HENRY SMITH, Esq., the Treasurer of the Society.

An abstract of the Annual Report of the Executive Committee was presented by the Secretaries.

On motion,

Resolved—That the Reports now presented be accepted and published under the direction of the Executive Committee.

On the Report of a Committee of Nomination, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year, and after prayer by Rev. HENRY B. HOOKER, D. D., of Boston, the Society adjourned.

CONSTITUTION

AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 1. This Society shall be denominated THE AMERICAN HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

ART. 2. The object of this Society shall be, to assist congregations that are unable to support the gospel ministry, and to send the gospel to the destitute within the United States

ART. 3. The officers of this Society shall be a President, Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, an Auditor, one or more Secretaries for Correspondence, a Recording Secretary, and fifty Directors who shall be annually appointed by this Society; and who, together with the Directors for Life, shall constitute a Board, seven of whom shall be a quorum, at any meeting regularly convened.

ART. 4. The officers and Directors shall appoint an Executive Committee of fourteen, (including the Treasurer, the Secretaries for Correspondence, and the Recording Secretary,) residing in the City of New York and its vicinity; five of whom shall be a quorum at any meeting regularly convened. The Committee shall have power to appoint its own meetings, form its own rules of business, and fill any vacancies in its own number which may occur during the year, and to convene special meetings of the Board or Society; shall appoint missionaries, and instruct them as to the field and manner of their labors; shall have the disposal of the funds; shall create such agency or agencies for appointing missionaries, and for other purposes, as the interests of the Institution may require; and shall make an Annual Report of their proceedings to the Society.

ART. 5. The Treasurer shall give bonds, annually, to such amount as the Executive Committee shall think proper.

ART. 6. Any person may become a member of this Society, by contributing annually to its funds; thirty dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Member for Life; and one hundred dollars paid at one time shall constitute a Director for Life; and any person on the payment of a sum which, in addition to any previous contribution to the funds, shall amount to one hundred dollars, shall be a Director for Life. An executor, on paying a legacy of two hundred and fifty dollars to the funds of this Society, shall be a Member for Life; and the payment of a legacy of one thousand dollars shall constitute a Director for Life.

ART. 7. Any Missionary Society may become Auxiliary, by agreeing to pay into the Treasury of this Society the whole of its surplus funds, and sending to the Secretaries for Correspondence a copy of its Constitution and Annual Reports, mentioning the names of its missionaries, and the fields of their operations.

ART. 8. Every Auxiliary Society, which shall agree to pay the whole of its funds to this Society, shall be entitled to a missionary or missionaries to labor in such fields as it may designate; at least to the amount of its contributions; provided such designation be made at the time of payment.

ART. 9. The officers of all Auxiliary Societies shall be, ex-officio, Directors; and annual contributors to their funds shall be members of the Society.

ART. 10. This Society shall meet annually in the city of New York, on the Wednesday next preceding the second Thursday in May.

ART. 11. No alteration shall be made in this Constitution without a vote of two-thirds of the members present at an annual meeting; nor unless the same shall have been proposed at a previous annual meeting, or recommended by the Executive Committee.

ACT OF INCORPORATION.

[Passed February 6, 1871.]

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Theodore D. Woolsey, William G. Lambert, Christopher R. Robert, Simeon B. Chittenden, Richard S. Storrs, Jr., William I. Budington, Calvin C. Woolworth, Charles Abernethy, John B. Hutchinson, Henry M. Storrs, William Henry Smith, Milton Badger, David B. Coe, A. Huntington Clapp, Austin Abbott, and George S. Coe, and all such persons as are now, or hereafter may become members of the American Home Missionary Society, formed in the City of New York in the year one thousand eight hundred and twenty-six, are hereby constituted a body corporate by the name of "The American Home Missionary Society," for the purpose of assisting feeble congregations, and of sending the gospel and the means of Christian education to the destitute within the United States.

SEC. 2. Said Corporation shall be capable of taking and holding, by purchase, gift, grant, devise or bequest, subject to the provisions of law relating to devises and bequests by last will and testament, real and personal property, and of granting or otherwise disposing of the same, for said purpose.

SEC. 3. The net annual income of said Society, arising from their real estate, shall not exceed the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars.

SEC. 4. This Corporation shall possess the powers and be subject to the provisions of title three of chapter eighteen of part one of the Revised Statutes, as amended, so far as the same are applicable.

SEC. 5. This Act shall take effect immediately.

FORTY-SEVENTH REPORT.

In reviewing the history of this Society for another year, our thoughts turn first to the friends and associates who have gone from our fellowship to that of the saints above. Since the last Anniversary, two of the Vice-Presidents, Hon. MARSHALL S. BIDWELL, LL. D., and Rev. JOHN P. CLEAVELAND, D. D., and three of the Directors, Rev. ZEDEKIAH S. BARSTOW, D. D., Rev. JOEL PARKER, D. D., and EDWARD J. WOOLSEY, Esq., have been removed by death.

Mr. Bidwell was elected a Vice-President in 1860; but he had been for many years, a firm friend of the Society, aiding it by the advocacy of its principles, by generous gifts to its Treasury, and by his professional counsel. Few men have manifested a warmer interest in its welfare, or held in higher appreciation the work it is performing for the country and the world. Dr. Cleaveland, Dr. Barstow, and Dr. Parker, held official relations to the Society for more than thirty years, and during this long period were among its most liberal supporters and its most earnest advocates. Though their names disappear from the list of its officers, their eminent services in its behalf will long be held in grateful remembrance.

Mr. Woolsey was elected a Director in 1859. Though he never took an active part in the administration of the Society's affairs, he kept himself familiar with its operations, and was, for many years, one of the most generous contributors to its Treasury. His loss is deeply felt by many kindred institutions of benevolence which have shared in his benefactions.

A heavy bereavement has fallen upon the Society, and especially upon the Executive Committee, in the removal by death of Rev. MILTON BADGER, D. D., the senior Secretary. He died in Madison, Conn., on the first day of March, in the 73rd year of his age. He was elected an Assistant Secretary, May 25th, 1835, and became a co-ordinate Secretary for Correspondence in December, 1837. In 1869 he was obliged, in consequence of his ill health, to retire from active service, but his official relation to the Society continued till his death, and covers a period of nearly thirty-eight years. Eminently qualified for his office by his intellectual gifts and culture, by his experience in the pastoral work, and by his deep interest in the cause of Home Missions, he performed the varied and arduous duties which devolved upon him, with singular fidelity, wisdom and success. During nearly four-fifths of the Society's existence, he has had a larger share than any other individual in guiding its counsels, supplying its resources, defending its principles, and conducting its work. Of those who composed its corps of executive officers, when he entered upon his labors, not one remains in its service to join in this tribute to his memory; but the associates of his later years rejoice to record their high appreciation of his personal virtues and his public services. They will ever hold him in affectionate remembrance, while thousands of Christian churches, scattered all over the land, will stand, as monuments of his labors, to the end of time.

Nine Missionaries have died since the last Report:—Rev. CHARLES D. PIGEON, in Massachusetts; Rev. WILLIAM W. BALDWIN and Rev. CHARLES G. GODDARD, in Connecticut; Rev. DAVID H. GOULD, in New York; Rev. GIDEON DANA, in Ohio; Rev. THERON K. BIXBY and Rev. RUFUS M. SAWYER, in Iowa; Rev. GEORGE B. HITCHCOCK and Rev. A. L. SMITH, in Kansas.

The operations of the Society in the different States and Territories of the Union, and in connection with its various Auxiliaries, are noticed under their appropriate heads in the body of the Report. Such details as can be presented in a compact form are embraced in the following

showing in parallel columns—

1. An alphabetical list of missionaries.
2. The names of congregations and missionary districts aided.
3. Dates of last commissions.
4. Length of commissions in months.

SUMMARY OF RESULTS.

The number of ministers of the gospel in the service of the Society, the last year, whose names are found in the General Table commencing on page 13, together with those engaged in superintending the work, is 951.

Of these, 734 were in commission at the date of the last Report, and 211 have since been appointed.

They have been distributed in 30 different States and Territories, as follows: In Maine, 102; New Hampshire, 39; Vermont, 57; Massachusetts, 66; Rhode Island, 7; Connecticut, 41; New York, 39; New Jersey, 7; Pennsylvania, 3; Virginia, 2; West Virginia, 1; Tennessee, 1; Ohio, 30; Indiana, 9; Illinois, 59; Missouri, 35; Michigan, 78; Wisconsin, 70; Iowa, 100; Minnesota, 48; Kansas, 67; Nebraska, 35; Dakota, 4; Colorado, 5; Wyoming, 1; Utah, 1; Nevada, 1; Idaho, 1; California, 35; Oregon, 6.

This distribution gives to the New England States, 312; Middle States 49; Southern States, 3; Western States and Territories, including 43 on the Pacific coast, 587.

Of the whole number in commission, 447 have been pastors or stated supplies of single congregations; 293 have ministered to two or three congregations each; and 211 have extended their labors over still wider fields.

The aggregate of ministerial labor performed, is 714 years.

The number of congregations and missionary districts which have been fully supplied, or where the gospel has been preached at stated intervals, is 2,145.

Two missionaries have been in commission as pastors or stated supplies of congregations of colored people, and 33 have preached in foreign languages; 18 to Welsh congregations, 13 to German congregations, and two to congregations of Swedes.

The number of Sabbath school and Bible class scholars is not far from 74,000.

The contributions to benevolent objects, reported by 608 missionaries, amount to $25,313.03.

Ninety missionaries make mention of revivals of religion during the year, in some of which there have been 70, 60, 58, and in one case 90 hopeful conversions. The number of conversions reported by 367 missionaries, is 2,935.

The additions to the churches, as nearly as can be ascertained, have been 5,725, namely:—3,183 on profession of their faith, and 2,542 by letters from other churches.

Eighty-nine churches have been organized, in connection with the labors of the missionaries, during the year, and thirty-four have assumed the entire support of their own gospel ordinances.

Fifty houses of worship have been completed; three repaired or improved; and the building of thirty-three others commenced. Seventy-seven young men in connection with the missionary churches, are reported as in different stages of preparation for the gospel ministry.

THE TREASURY.

RESOURCES.—The balance in the Treasury, April 1, 1872, was $13,404.55. The receipts for the succeeding twelve months have been $267,691.42—making the resources of the year $281,095.97.

LIABILITIES.—There was due to missionaries, at the close of the last year, $20,202.65. There has since become due, $282,157.81—making the total liabilities $302,360.46.

PAYMENTS.—Of this sum, $278,830.24 have been paid, leaving $23,530.22 still due to the missionaries for labor performed. In addition to these past dues, appropriations already made, and daily becoming due, amount to $121,035.48, making the total of pledges $144,565.70, toward canceling which there is a balance in the Treasury of $2,345.75.

The foregoing statements show that, in some particulars, the Society has accomplished less than in the preceding year. The number of missionaries sustained is less by ten, the number of revivals reported, by twenty, the number of conversions, by 608, and the number of additions to the churches by 533. But, in other respects, there has been a decided advance. In the older States of the West, an unusual number of churches have assumed the support of their ministers, and thus the corps of the Society's laborers in that portion of the country has been reduced; while, in the States and Territories beyond the Mississippi river, it has sustained a larger number than in any former year. It is worthy of notice, also, that a greater proportion of them than heretofore have occupied fields each of which embraces several congregations; so that the Society has been able to extend its ministrations over a wider area and to a much larger number of communities than during the previous year.

The receipts have been less than in the preceding year by $26,875; but this decrease is partly in the income derived from legacies. The gifts of living contributors, though less than in the twelve months immediately preceding, exceed those of any other year in the history of the Society by $29,915. We are happy to acknowledge, also, the receipt of numerous and valuable gifts which are not included in the Treasurer's Report. Many friends of the Society have testified their sympathy for the missionaries and their love to Him whose servants they are, by offerings for the relief of families whose wants could not be adequately supplied by the ordinary grants of the Executive Committee. A single gift of $1,000, for this purpose, was recently placed at their disposal by an American gentleman now residing in England. SAMUEL HOLMES, Esq., of Mont Clair, N. J., in addition to his other liberal donations, has presented to each of the missionaries a copy of Rev. Henry Ward Beecher's "Yale Lectures on Preaching." Other contributions in books, periodicals, clothing and other articles valuable to missionaries and their families, swell the amount of donations not noticed in the Report of the Treasurer, to nearly $40,000.

During the latter half of the year, the Treasury suffered severe embarrassment. The Committee had been encouraged to enlarge the scale of their operations. The receipts of the previous year had been much larger than ever before, and, at its close, a considerable balance remained in the Treasury. The National Council had manifested an extraordinary interest in the work of the Society, and not only recommended to the churches that they should raise their contributions to its Treasury to $500,000 a year, but suggested the adoption of certain methods of co-operation, which were expected to contribute to this result. Accordingly, large missionary re-enforcements were sent to the frontier portions of the field, and heavy liabilities for their support were incurred. But, in consequence of severe monetary pressure in the Western States, the expected increase of contributions from that quarter was not realized; while the fire in Boston, in connection with other causes, diminished the gifts of the New England churches. The Committee, therefore, were obliged to postpone their plans of enlargement, and to exercise the closest economy in all their expenditures. Yet, for several months, the Treasury was entirely exhausted, and the balance remaining in it at the end of the financial year was less by $23,500 than the amount required to cancel the liabilities of the Society to missionaries for labor already performed.

Remarks on the foregoing Table.

1. The total of receipts for forty-six years, is $6,547,150.05.

2. The total years of labor is 29,325.

3. The whole number of additions to the churches is 229,585.

4. The average expenditure for a year of missionary labor includes the entire cost to the Society of obtaining the missionary, defraying his expenses to his field, and sustaining him on it, as well as the average proportion of all the expenses in conducting the Institution.

DISTRIBUTION OF MISSIONARIES, No. 2.

| Society's Year. | Eastern States. | | | | | | Middle States. | | | | Southern States. | | | | | | | | | | | | | | Western States and Territories. | | | | | | | | | | | | | |

PRINCIPAL AUXILIARIES AND MISSIONARY FIELDS.

MAINE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. JOHN O. FISKE, D. D., President; Rev. STEPHEN THURSTON, D. D., Secretary; JOSHUA MAXWELL, Esq., Treasurer. Office in Portland.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1st, were $13,338.54—of which $2,987.35 were from legacies. The direct contributions from the State to the Treasury of the American Home Missionary Society, were $1,094.97, of which $500 were from legacies,—making the amount raised for Home Missions, $14,413.51; being $3,471.75 less than the amount raised in the preceding year. There was expended on the work within the State, $16,508.44.

The number of missionaries employed within the year is one hundred and two—eight less than in the previous year. Of these fifty-six were commissioned—and thirty-three served—for the entire year. The average term of service was a little more than six and one-half months. Four missionaries were ordained as evangelists. One church has completed and dedicated a beautiful and convenient house of worship, and two others have made available, by extensive repairs, houses that were unfit for occupancy. Though there have been few marked revivals of religion, several churches have been spiritually refreshed: one has more than doubled in membership, and large additions have been made to three others. No aided church has assumed self-support, while one that had been independent has come back upon the Society.

The Society met with a serious loss in the death of Eben Steele, Esq., and the Hon. Woodbury Davis—faithful and efficient members of the Board of Trustees, "wise in counsel, and liberal in measures."

Reminding the churches of the conditions of discipleship, the Trustees say: "How a man worth his hundreds of thousands, can give nine-tenths of it to his children, and only one-tenth, or less, to Christ and his cause, and yet claim that he loves Christ more than sons and daughters, is a problem not easily solved. How such claims of discipleship will stand the final trial, is a momentous question which every man to whom God has given large wealth should deeply ponder." The greatest embarrassment to the work in Maine is still the want of ministers. "There is in this State," says the Trustees, "a very frequent call for ministers, to which none respond. Many of our churches must remain destitute, unless more men of a humble and unambitious spirit are brought into the ministry, who shall cheerfully toil where their names will be little known, that they may win souls to Christ and train them for heaven."

NEW HAMPSHIRE MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. Asa D. Smith, D. D., LL. D., President; Rev. William Clark, D. D., Secretary; Hon. Lyman D. Stevens, Treasurer. Office in Concord.

The receipts for the year closing with the first of March, were $6,804.38. There was received in the Treasury of the National Society from New Hampshire, during the same months, from legacies, $2,515.58; from churches and individuals, $1,922.84; through the New Hampshire Society, $958.04—in all, $5,396.46; making the entire Home Missionary contributions of the State, $12,250.79—less by $3,647.53 than the amount contributed during the previous year. The expenditures for missionary work in the State were $8,721.42.

The number of missionaries aided within the year is thirty-nine; of whom twenty labored through the twelve months, and seven others, each for six months or more. The average term of service is nearly eight months and three-quarters. No general revivals are reported, nor any marked gain beyond the addition of eighty-five persons to the missionary churches. Death and emigration have meanwhile been doing their work of depletion.

"The increasing weakness and ultimate extinction of not a few of our very feeble churches by death and emigration"—say the Trustees—"appear inevitable. While we deeply regret this, we will rejoice if other churches of evangelical faith take the ground once occupied by our churches, and do the work performed by some of them for more than a century. Several of these weakened churches, hitherto self-sustaining, have applied for assistance, and others will do the same."

Of the work of the National Society the Trustees say, "No one of the numerous enterprises bearing on the educational, moral and religious welfare of our country, occupying the deliberations of the National Council for an entire week, was made so prominent, or elicited so earnest and protracted discussion as Home Missions. Members of the Council, all the way from Maine to Oregon, entirely agreed that this cause is the only hope, under God, of the perpetuity of our Republican government, of the invaluable free institutions that have risen up under it. They can be preserved only as the fear of God pervades the national mind. This fear can be inspired only by the faithful preaching of the gospel throughout the entire land; and this can be done in our vast new States and Territories, at the first, only through Home Missions. It was under this strong conviction that the Council, by a rising vote, declared its belief that the 3,000 churches connected with it should raise $500,000 yearly for this cause."

VERMONT DOMESTIC MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

J. W. HICKOK, Esq., President; Rev. C. S. SMITH, Secretary; J. C. EMERY, Esq., Treasurer. Office in Montpelier.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, from all sources, for the year ending March 1st, were $16,103.34. There was received into the Treasury of the Parent Society, in the same time, from legacies, $3,371.61; from churches and individuals, $954.00—in all $4,325.61—making the amount raised in Vermont for Home Missions, $17,428.95—less by $159.72 than the contributions of the previous year. The expenditures within the State were $10,079.10.

Fifty-seven missionaries—sixteen of them being students and licentiates—have been employed in sixty-two different fields, performing thirty-eight years of service. The "county missionary" has continued his labors in Windham county with encouraging success. One pastor has been settled; two have been dismissed. Two houses of worship have been completed and dedicated, five have been repaired, and one parsonage has been purchased. Eleven churches have been visited with more than usual religious interest; one hundred and eighty-four hopeful conversions have been reported, and two hundred and fifty-five have been received to church membership.

The "itinerant work" (corresponding with that of most of the Western missionaries of the National Society) continues to be richly blessed—eighty-eight of the conversions occurring in connection with these labors. The Secretary relates the case of a Theological student who went into two neighboring communities, with no church organization of any kind, and no evangelical preaching for many years, though in each place was a "union" house of worship. In these the student preached on alternate Sabbaths. The people came to hear. Sabbath schools and prayer meetings were gathered. The Holy Spirit came among them; the congregations increased to two or three hundred. Men inquired after Christ and found him. A congregational church was formed, of thirty-five members, of whom eleven uniting by letter were from five different denominations—each surrendering some of his preferences, and all dwelling together in harmony. At two subsequent communion seasons eighteen were added by profession, several of them heads of families. "A marked change is apparent in the whole atmosphere of the place. The Sabbath is observed as a holy day, instead of a holiday. There is an average congregation of one hundred and seventy-five and a Sabbath school of one hundred and twenty-five, and the people have subscribed $650 toward the support of preaching." Well urges the Secretary: "How does God rebuke our want of faith, by thus making the wilderness a fruitful field, and the desert to rejoice and blossom as the rose under Christian culture! Such instances should confirm our confidence in the gospel as the power of God, and adapted to meet the condition of men in all communities, and in every moral and spiritual state."

MASSACHUSETTS HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. WILLIAM A. STEARNS, D. D., LL. D., President; Rev. HENRY B. HOOKER, D. D., Secretary; CHARLES DEMOND, Esq., Treasurer. Office in Boston.

The receipts of the Massachusetts Society for the year ending March 1st, were $70,576.12—of which $9,741.31 were the avails of legacies. The expenditures within the State were $20,345.81, and the amount forwarded to the Treasury of the National Society during its financial year was $49,000. The Parent Society also received from Massachusetts, during the same months: in payment of legacies, $11,210.33; from the Hampshire Missionary Society, $6,420.65; from congregations and individuals, $16,481.20—in all, $34,112.18. The whole amount raised in the State for Home Missions within the year, was $104,688.30; which is less by $12,732.71 than was raised in the previous year. The amount placed at the disposal of the National Society was $83,112.18; which is $19,377.66 less than the amount furnished in the previous year.

The number of missionaries under commission within the year is sixty-six. Of these forty-eight served for the entire year, five for six months or more, making an aggregate of nearly fifty-one and a half years' service, to churches numbering 2,384 members, congregations in which were statedly gathered about 10,000 hearers, and Sabbath schools with about 4,000 pupils. The conversions reported were 118. There were seventeen changes in the ministry of the aided churches, but at the end of the year all were supplied. One missionary was ordained, and one died at his post. One church came to self-support.

The Home Evangelization work, under the lead of Rev. DANIEL P. NOYES, was prosecuted with growing success, till the close of 1872, when he regarded it as having been "brought into such a shape that it might be satisfactorily continued under the direction of the General Association and its Committee, without a paid Secretary." He accordingly resigned, and such special measures as may seem wise, "for reaching the neglecting classes in towns and cities," will hereafter be managed by a State Committee made up of members from the several local Conferences.

The venerable Dr. HOOKER, who, since 1858, as Secretary of the Massachusetts Society, has been rendering the Home Missionary cause in this land such admirable service, has for a year felt that he was entitled to a discharge from so arduous a work, and has been holding his post only until a suitable successor could be found. The Society has united in the choice of Rev. WILLIAM BARROWS, D. D., whose acceptance is announced as this Report is going to the press. Among the results of the Society's work during the fifteen years of Dr. HOOKER'S service, it appears that seventeen churches have been organized, and twenty-one have been raised to self-support. There have been sent to the National Society, through the Massachusetts Treasury, $466,700; and from the State, but not through that Treasury, $167,518—in all, $634,218. Expended in the State during the fifteen years, $266,847; raised in Massachusetts for Home Missions in the State and over the land, the generous sum of $901,065. In view of such a record, cannot the friends of Home Missions elsewhere afford to come to the front with special offerings, while the glorious old Bay State repairs the ravages of fire and gathers up her forces for yet grander achievements in years to come!

RHODE ISLAND HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Hon. WILIAM W. HOPPIN, President; Rev. CONSTANTINE BLODGETT, D. D., Secretary; EDWIN KNIGHT, Esq., Treasurer. Office in Providence.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1st, were $1,999.85. There was also contributed from the State to the Treasury of the National Society, during its financial year, $1,962.67; of which $333.34 were in payment of legacies—making a total for the cause of $3,962.52; which is $35.97 less than the contributions of the previous year. The expenditures within the State were $2,096.50.

The number of missionaries sustained during the year is seven, one of them being pastor of the colo ed church in Newport. Five labored in the same fields during the twelve months. Fifty-one members have been added to the aided churches—twenty-nine on profession of faith, and twenty-two by letter.

"With a single exception," says the Secretary, "the churches aided by this Society have enjoyed a fair degree of prosperity during the past year. They have, for the most part, been doing good service, and the aid rendered them has been met with corresponding effort on their own part. It is hoped that the whole question of missionary effort in destitute towns and districts may be taken up anew by this Society. As we have now a larger number of settled pastors in the State than for many years, we are in a better situation to organize and carry forward liberal plans for the upbuilding of the church of Christ. The condition of the Treasury is favorable, and nearly every church in the State has responded to our calls. With the blessing of God, we look forward cheerfully to new enterprises and bolder endeavors for the future."

CONNECTICUT HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. WILLIAM H. MOORE, Secretary; JAMES L. CHAPMAN, Esq., Treasurer
Office in Hartford.

The receipts of this Society for the year ending March 1st, were $17,143.16, and the expenditures within the State were $11,429.39. This Auxiliary also forwarded to the National Society, during its financial year, $5,054.65; besides which there were contributed directly to its Treasury; from congregations and individuals, $16,893.12; in payment of legacies, $21,925: in all, $38,818.12—making the total for the cause, $55,861.28; more by $924.81 than the amount raised in the preceding year. The amount placed at the disposal of the National Society is $43,872.77; which is $2,874.69 more than the amount so placed in the previous year.

The number of missionaries aided during the year is forty-one, having the oversight of thirty-four churches with the outlying districts. One has been disabled by sickness, and two have died. Three have been installed. No church has become self-supporting; one has united with another denomination. The general condition of the aided churches is good; one, with outside help, has cleared itself of a debt of $6,000, and expects no further aid; one has more than doubled its membership. Aid has been granted to ten churches reporting debts, on condition that these should be paid. The aided churches reported, January 1, 1873, a membership of 2,276—724 males and 1,552 females.

The additions in 1872 were 161—73 by profession and 88 by letter; and the removals were 119—a gain of 42. The average attendance upon the Sabbath schools was 3,298, and in the congregations were 1,951 families. The reported charitable contributions were $3,887.62—an average of $1.71 for each church-member, and forty-one per cent. of the amount granted to these churches for the year.

Rev. CHARLES H. BULLARD resigned his position as general missionary, April 1, 1872, and no successor has been appointed.

The Secretary looks to see an increase of the number of churches asking aid, on account of the decay of rural parishes, the uncertain tenure by which churches in factory villages hold their places, and the increase of salaries. "Yet on the whole," he says, "the interests of Home Missions in the State are in a sound and hopeful condition, and there is no flagging in the interest with which the churches of Connecticut follow and sustain the American Home Missionary Society in its great work for our country and for Christ."

The total of receipts from New England is $208,925.32; which is less than the amount of the preceding year, by $25,001.57. Of this, $69,180.66 were expended within its own bounds, and $139,744.66 were forwarded to the National Institution, for its general work.

NEW YORK HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. WM. IVES BUDINGTON, D. D., President; Rev. JOHN C. HOLBROOK, D. D., Secretary; WILLIAM HENRY SMITH, Esq., Treasurer. Office in Syracuse.

The number of missionaries commissioned for service in New York, within the year now reported, is thirty-nine. They have supplied forty-eight churches and thirteen out stations. One pastor has been installed; one church has become self-sustaining; several have refitted and renovated their houses of worship, at considerable expense. A few report interesting revivals, and several speak of additions beyond their average yearly number.

The contributions from the State where $17,240.85—of which $4,223.50 were the avails of legacies. New York stands the third upon the list of contributors to this Society; having raised for its Treasury in the last five years $168,460—an annual average of $33,692.

At the meeting of the General Association, in October, 1872, the New York Home Missionary Society was organized as an Auxiliary of the National Institution, for the exploration and supply of such sections of the State as are destitute of the means of grace, aiding feeble churches in the support of ministers, supervising the work of home evangelization, keeping alive the interest of the churches in the National Society and securing large contributions for it. Rev. L. SMITH HOBART having resigned the Superintendency he had acceptably filled for ten years, Rev. Dr. HOLBROOK was recalled from California to the oversight of the weaker churches, in which he had taken a deep interest during his former ministry in this State. The Society has begun its work under very favorable auspices. It is making special efforts to bring together weak churches of various evangelical denominations, in places where one organization is sufficient; to secure the union of two or more neighboring Congregational churches under the same pastoral care; and to induce the churches to adopt the plan of "weekly offerings" in the support of the ministry and benevolent causes. Thus far it is succeeding in each of these efforts, and the Secretary believes that in these ways many of the missionary churches of the State will ere long cease to need aid, while far larger contributions will be realized from the abler congregations.

OHIO HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

Rev. THOMAS E. MUNROE, Secretary; FRANCIS C. SESSIONS, Esq., Treasurer. Office in Columbus.

The receipts of this Auxiliary, from July 1, 1872, to March 1, 1873, were $3,174.72. There were also contributed from Ohio to the Treasury of the National Society during its financial year, $2,775.91, of which $336.50 were the avails of legacies—making the sum raised in the State for Home Missions, $5,950.63—less by $2,130.95 than the amount raised in the previous year. The expenditures of the Auxiliary were $2,529.77. There were also $742 appropriated to missionaries in Ohio by the Parent Society, within the year.

The number of missionaries commissioned in Ohio by the National Society and the Auxiliary, during the year, is thirty. These have had the pastoral care of about forty churches and out-stations Two churches have become self-sustaining, and three which had assumed self-support have come back for needed aid. One church has been organized; one has built a house of worship, and three have made extensive repairs. While there has been no general revival of religion, several missionaries report far more than usual interest—in one instance extending to the families of the entire town.

The new Auxiliary Society was formed at the meeting of the General Conference in June, 1872, and went into operation in July. Rev. LYSANDER KELSEY, who has efficiently represented the National Society in Ohio since 1857, resigned his position, and the Auxiliary has since gone forward without a salaried Superintendent. Its work, thus far to some extent preliminary and experimental, "has met with a success," says the Secretary, "beyond our expectation. Our force of laborers is increased, and our collections from the churches now reported are several hundred dollars beyond the contributions of the same churches last year." As soon as the new and spirited organization gets its field surveyed and its forces well in hand, we look to see the waste places of Ohio well cared for, and generous aid furnished for the evangelization of the regions beyond.

INDIANA.

Rev. NATHANIEL A. HYDE, Indianapolis, Superintendent.

Within the bounds of Indiana nine missionaries served fourteen churches and congregations. Contributions to this Treasury were $435.87—less by $205 than the previous year. One church was organized; two became self-supporting; one house of worship was dedicated and one parsonage erected. The year, though not marked by revivals, was not fruitless. One missionary reports twenty hopeful conversions, and others smaller numbers.

During the year, at Mr. Hyde's request, his field of general oversight and work has been reduced, leaving him free to devote himself chiefly to one church at Indianapolis. In review, he says: "The progress of the Society's work in this State is materially affected by the fact that the field is largely occupied by other denominations. The sons and daughters of Puritan churches coming from elsewhere commonly cast in their lot with the stronger religious bodies. In early days, while the State was yet fixing the character of its institutions, the American Home Missionary Society was promptly on the ground with a large force of faithful men. For several years more than fifty were employed, and a great number of churches were established by their labors, many of which are now amongst the strongest in the State. But the fruits of those years are gathered in another ecclesiastical connection; they do not appear in the present constituency of this Society. This may serve to explain why its work on this field is more limited than on others."

ILLINOIS.

Rev. JOSEPH E. ROY, D. D., Chicago, Superintendent for Northern Illinois (also Field Superintendent); Rev. MARTIN K. WHITTLESEY, Alton, Superintendent for Central and Southern Illinois.

The Society had fifty-nine missionaries in Illinois, serving eighty churches and congregations. The receipts to its Treasury were $8,531.56; a gain of $795 in one year.

In the Northern District, three churches were organized; four became self-supporting; nine enjoyed revivals; four completed, and two more began houses of worship.

In the Southern District, four churches were organized; five enjoyed revivals, and three completed houses of worship.

Stimulated by the National Council, the churches, at the last General Association, created the Illinois Home Missionary Society, designed to co-operate with this in its ever-growing work. This Empire State of the West should certainly bring out its immense natural wealth and Christian force till the point of self-support has been reached and left far behind. "Fellowship meetings," with this in view, have been in progress under the auspices of the State Society. Dr. Roy writes: "By the end of the year nearly every church will have been visited. The plan is this: special prayer and visitation of members are the preparation for one. A day is then given, with each church, to visiting in the forenoon; service for salutation, conference and prayer in the afternoon; and to addresses on Home Evangelization in the evening. Great good has followed. Weaker churches have been encouraged, the stronger stimulated, and all have felt the quickened pulse of church communion. Contributions to our cause have increased, aided churches have been led to effort for speedy self-support, and the 'yoking' of churches promoted." In repeated instances, fellowship meetings were followed by "four days meetings" and revivals. The whole furnished a beautiful illustration of Rev. Dr. Alden's sermon at the last anniversary of the Parent Society on "The vital connection of Home Missions with the fellowship of the churches." Our churches are fast coming into sympathy with those at the East as to depletion by removals. Our material spreads over the plains and mountains beyond. To strengthen things that remain is becoming a large share of our work.

Besides its large number of faithful missionaries, each claiming from one to seven stations, Illinois now has the undivided labors of two Superintendents, Rev. Martin K.

Whittlesey having taken oversight of the work in the Central and Southern part of the State. Himself a Home Missionary for years, and more recently an honored and beloved pastor at Alton, he needs no letters of commendation or introduction. As cordially appointed by the Committee, as he was nominated by the Directors of the State Society, he has entered on his work with prospects of the most gratifying success.

MISSOURI.

Rev. EDWIN B. TURNER, Hannibal, Superintendent.

In Missouri thirty-five missionaries have served fifty-two churches and congregations. The receipts to this Treasury were $1,006.96; a gain of $161 in one year. Five churches were organized; one became self-supporting; ten enjoyed revivals; two began to build, and two essentially repaired their houses of worship.

Sixty churches—more than one-half of them aided—raised $6,121.75 for benevolent objects. The sixty-nine Congregational churches have over 2,800 members, and 5,000 in their Sunday schools. They bear up nobly against severe discouragements, and richly deserve, as they will have, the aid of this Society by which they were mostly planted. Its missionaries sought out and organized their material when there were few or none asking its aid. Their existence to-day should show those who know their origin that this Society is in no wise bound in its work of exploring in advance, and planting churches.

"This year," says Mr. Turner, "has been the most trying of the last eight. The severe monetary stringency has embarrassed those who have bought property since the war. Many of them were our best supporters. This—with changes in towns; old ones going down and new ones coming up—has enforced removals that have almost disheartened some churches. But we are doing our best to follow up those that move. Much labor has been spent to cheer depleted churches to fresh effort. Precious seasons and many additions have been the result. Out of our poverty, too, we are trying to give more than in former years. The field was never more inviting; the physical growth of the State never more rapid, despite the hard times. New veins are being opened in the vas coal fields. The immense iron deposits are developing fresh mines of wealth, stimulating manufactures of all kinds, creating new centers of population, and bringing immigrants from all quarters. Lead was lately found underlying a whole county, and more than 3,000 people came together in six months. One of our missionaries at once took up his quarters among the rough shanties, and has gathered a church of twenty members. Such new centers need the gospel, need the missionary to lay Christian foundations amidst the rude beginnings. A dozen men, of apostolic zeal and self-denial, could to-day find open doors for labor where they could not boast in another man's line of things made ready to their hand. But how can we go forward without men for this foundation work, or without means to support them?

MICHIGAN.

Rev. WOLCOTT B. WILLIAMS, Charlotte, Superintendent for Southern and Eastern Michigan; Rev. LEROY WARREN, Pentwater, Superintendent for Northwestern Michigan.

In Michigan seventy-eight missionaries this year served more than one hundred and sixty congregations. The contributions to this Treasury were $8,912.47; a gain of $6,162 in one year.

Fourteen churches were organized—making now 134 aided churches in this State; four became self-supporting; four enjoyed revivals, while seven more had seasons of special interest; and eight dedicated houses of worship.

The great increase of contributions to Home Missions deserves special remark. It did not come largely from legacies, but from a giving heart and system in living men and churches. The General Association named $8,000 as the least that ought to be raised, and apportioned it out. The plan was taken up with a will; and more than the $8,000—nearly $9,000—is the result, where before $3,000 was the supposed outside amount possible; and where $2,950 had been the annual average for the last five years. The joy such a success brings must be a great reward. It places Michigan at the head of Western States on the Home Missionary roll of honor. But Home Missionary work there is not yet finished. Mr. Williams says: "In this (Southern) District are several vacant churches in settled towns which self-denying men, with reasonable talents and piety, might expect ere long to build up into self-supporting ones, that will bless the community for generations to come. The chief work here for the next few years will be not so much the occupancy of new fields and the organization of new churches, as the strengthening of things that remain."

Mr. Warren, of the Northwestern District, after writing of the eight churches organized—three of them at county seats; one in the midst of large settlements of homesteaders covering two townships where no other denomination has yet preached the gospel or authorized any Christian work; and the remaining four at important railroad stations —says, "But though the work has been thus enlarged, far less has been done than the wants of the country imperatively demand. There never was a time when the increase of population and the progress of improvement here were so rapid as now. Nine hundred and thirty-three miles were added last year to the railroad system of the State; and these roads traverse not mainly the older sections, but the hitherto uninhabitable wildernesses of the north, and bring population with them. Villages and towns spring up before the forest disappears. From the start these welcome the gospel. The people are very ready to attend meeting on Sunday, and always desire to have a meeting-house. Very many of them are the sort of people out of whom a stable Christian society can be built up. But many of these most inviting fields the lack of men and lack of money compel us to pass by. In five counties newly crossed by railroads, we have no missionary. We are then in great need of men —men of ready wisdom, full of faith and of the Holy Ghost—to answer these calls, and often the money would help us to the men. For though the men wanted are not those who would come for the money, yet they would sometimes come when they do not, could they be assured of support for their families."

Can we not enlarge our work a little more this year? Now is the day of our opportunity in Northern Michigan! What will those who love our country—what will the disciples of Christ—what will the friends of this Society and its work answer to facts and appeals like these from Michigan, which come also from all the great West?

WISCONSIN.

Rev. DEXTER CLARY, Beloit, Superintendent for Southern Wisconsin; Rev. FRANKLIN B. DOE, Ripon, Superintendent for Northern Wisconsin.

By seventy missionaries this Society has preached at one hundred and forty-five stations in Wisconsin. The contributions from the State were $3,345.80, an increase of $759 in one year. Of these missionaries twenty-six labored in the Southern District, supplying thirty-nine churches and twenty out-stations. Of the ninety-four Congregational churches here, ten are Welsh and one German. Five ministers left and six entered this field.

Last October, Rev. Mr. Clary was constrained by growing age to resign his office. The eminent wisdom and devotion he brought to it for over twenty-two years were attested by the deep feeling and grateful words of the Wisconsin General Convention at its annual meeting. His memory will be cherished. The Directors of the Wisconsin Home Missionary Society, then organized, soon after nominated Rev. H. A. Miner, pastor at Columbus, in that State,—having the confidence of all the churches and believed to be fitted for the work—to fill the vacancy. This nomination was cordially entertained by the Executive Committee, and the appointment was made experimentally for the year. We are able to report its acceptance and that Mr. Miner will soon enter upon his duties.

Of the 107 Congregational churches in the Northern District, not more than thirty-seven are self-supporting, and some of these are so only as united with others. Of the rest, sixty-two, with thirty-four out-stations, were supplied by the forty-four missionaries there. Two churches were organized; two assumed self-support; four built houses of worship, and two paid off heavy debts. One minister was installed and two were ordained. "With three exceptions the self-supporting churches gave something to Home Missions—the aided churches gave nobly." Some have adopted the plan of systematic giving, to their advantage. "More is to be done for Home Missions," says Mr. Doe, "in 1873 than ever before." The year was not specially marked by revivals, but there were some of great power; and many churches were refreshed. More than 500 members were added on profession. There is a working spirit in most of our churches and abundant opportunity for it. Our great need is, more devoted ministers who will talk less about salary and do more to win souls. But we have many noble ones who reach almost the outer limit of achievement and devotion. We have also a great number of large-hearted, self-denying members. The work will prosper. God will not forsake his own cause. We are as yet, however, emphatically a Home Missionary State. Railroads are pushing out every way, and so the work enlarges. We must be abreast of the demand. Our churches will not be content with an ox-team when the world moves with the swiftness of steam." With deep interest and great hope this Society looks to Wisconsin for a true fulfillment of these promises.

IOWA.

Rev. EPHRIAM ADAMS, Waterloo, Superintendent for Northern Iowa; Rev JOSEPH W. PICKETT, Des Moines, Superintendent for Southern Iowa.

Distributed over the broad area of Iowa, one hundred missionaries ministered, the past year, to one hundred and seventy-five churches and stations. There were contributed to this Society $3,573.26—a gain of $295 in one year. Thirteen churches were organized; four became self-supporting; three completed houses of worship, and five began building. Many report revivals. Four men were ordained and three installed.

The Northern District has seventy-seven Congregational ministers—of whom thirty are supplying churches once aided by this Society, but now independent. Of the others twenty-eight were chiefly occupied at one station each, and the rest had from two to five stations. In this field are eighty missionary churches, of which six are German supplied by five ministers preaching in German.

In the Southern District, of thirty-nine missionaries, three preached to German and two to Welsh churches; twenty-three labored chiefly at single points, eleven at two, four at three, and one at four. Thus sixty-one churches were statedly supplied, and other congregations had occasional services. There seems to be in both Districts an increased interest in Home Missions and greater readiness to make sacrifices. The State Society, organized last June, is at work invigorating local committees and the system of "fellowship meetings." In consequence the churches are disposed to do more for self-support, or to share the services of one missionary among two or more of them, relieving this Treasury. The past year has been one of spiritual blessing. Mr. Pickett writes, "The cry from my western frontier for help in revival work was so importunate that I left all else and spent the whole winter among the feeble churches." Mr. Adams says, "I think I have never known such a revival interest among our churches. 'Fellowship meeting' is coming to be a synonym for a time of quickening. From every direction reports come of meetings held and refreshings enjoyed. It is not yet time to count conversions—as well say, perhaps, 'the churches are being edified.' Our missionaries, as a class, are workers in Zion; faithful Christian men; able men too, many of them, and strong for God. The churches—thanks to my predecessor's sagacity—are most of them well located. Their congregations are the Puritan element in this glorious State, and are felt in our schools and seminaries of learning, in our political as well as religious affairs. Iowa would not be the State she is to-day, but for what the American Home Missionary Society has done in her through these churches."

Both Superintendents plead for men and money.

"Here are twenty places I could occupy at once and then go on with the demand increasing. When shall we hear the cheering word 'Forward'?"—asks Mr. Adams. "More and more am I oppressed by this need of missionaries, devoted and able young men who will say to the large Eastern inducements, 'No! I am consecrated'!—answers back Mr. Pickett. "More men and more money!" Who of our young men will say 'Here, Lord, am I, send me'? And who will answer to that, 'Here, Lord, are the means with which to send, and furnish, and sustain him'?

It is impossible to refuse sympathy with the words in which Mr. Pickett concludes his annual report: "As in loneliness and weariness I roam these rolling prairies, I foresee some of the wonderful beauty and glory that twenty years will unfold. Christian homes, with waving grain, teeming orchards, and groves from which rise church spires, will then cover these now vast, untrodden solitudes. In imagination I hear the tramp of the coming millions who are to find homes here in the near future, and my footsteps are quickened and my ardor is kindled as I listen to the command — 'Prepare ye the way of the Lord; make straight in the desert a highway for our God'!"

MINNESOTA.

Rev. Richard Hall, St. Paul, Superintendent.

Through forty-eight missionaries the Society has ministered in Minnesota to seventy-four churches and congregations. Its receipts were $1,344.26, a gain of $160.26 in the year.

Out of eighty Congregational churches in this State, sixty are still aided; forty-seven have good houses of worship—five of them built this year; eight were organized; three became self-supporting; eleven have settled pastors; eleven are wholly unsupplied; two report revivals.

One year ago, Rev. H. N. Gates had just been sent to explore along the Northern Pacific Railway. Success has fully crowned expectation. His welcome was cordial, and the field worthy of his energy. Thanks are due to the railroad authorities for their generous spirit and deeds. Organized and well-appointed churches at all best points on the line are the rich fruit of this pleasing co-operation.

On the railways penetrating the great south-western counties, Rev. E. H. Alden, under a like commission, and aided by men of the same stamp in similar position, is doing work of the same kind with cheering results. Minnesota added 356 miles to her railroads last year. Towns spring into being all along these lines and create new demands for missionary aid. More than half the 530,000 people of this great State, climbing so rapidly to power, are of foreign parentage and largely of foreign tongue. It belongs to us—children of the soil, and having the word of Jesus—to pervade all this population with a vital religion. Neither nationality nor language, active infidelity nor dead formalism should long prevent us. Each new year the American church is confronted more solemnly by this question of the foreign element. It cannot be ignored or overlooked. If we have not the men for the work, God can create or convert them. Meantime we are certainly to strengthen the brethren, the little churches diffused like leaven through the mass, and so prepare the way. Minnesota, too, organized its Home Missionary Society. The time for fruit is not yet. The winter's extreme severity prevented meetings designed to follow the week of prayer, largely diminished attendance on Sabbath services, and made revival efforts almost impossible. But the churches and brethren are not discouraged. The husbandman hath long patience; then cometh harvest.

Rev. Mr. Hall, Superintendent for sixteen years, has felt compelled to tender his resignation. In accepting it the Committee bore cordial testimony to its own obligations for the fidelity and wisdom of his counsel, and to its deep sense of the great value of his work to the State where he has labored so long and devotedly to raise up the "foundation of many generations."

KANSAS.

Rev. SYLVESTER D. STORRS, Quindaro, Superintendent.

In Kansas sixty-seven missionaries the past year served not less than one hundred and fifty preaching stations.

There were received to this Treasury $1,254.37; a gain of $429 in the year. Twenty churches were organized—making 104 Congregational churches in the State, ten of which are self-supporting and several others nearly so; two completed and eight more began houses of worship, some of which are nearly ready for use. One man was licensed, four ordained, and one installed. Seventy-two ministers gave their whole time to preaching, and five others render occasional service. "Twelve came to the State last year as missionaries, and eight more, not before actively engaged, or working in other denominations, joined our ranks." Three, previously in commission, left the State and two died; making a net gain of fifteen ministers."

The year has been "marked by great and precious revivals. Never before has the Holy Spirit visited our churches in such power. At least twenty have enjoyed a season in which souls were converted, and as many more were greatly quickened in the divine life. God has greatly blessed his people, giving them more faith, courage and zeal to labor in his service. To him be all the praise."

The Superintendent also says, "By November 1st, twelve new and rapidly growing counties had been partially explored—in seven a church was organized, and for six a resident missionary was secured. The area so occupied is larger than all Massachusetts; and yet there is much land to be possessed. Thousands and tens of thousands are preparing to come to Kansas this season; are already coming. Money has been extremely close, but the people have never shown a greater desire to give for the support of their ministers, the building of churches or general benevolence. Not a few of these brethren and sisters have been most self-sacrificing that they might give."

NEBRASKA.

Rev. ORVILLE W. MERRILL, Lincoln, Superintendent.

In Nebraska thirty-five missionaries, through thirty counties, have preached to fifty-one churches and forty outstations. Five occupied each a single station, eleven had two; sixteen had three or four; three had a county each; and several covered larger fields. The average "Sabbath day's journey" of a Nebraska missionary is twelve miles; his weekly range, fifty miles; in some cases, one hundred and fifty. Twenty churches were organized; two became self-supporting; five report revivals; several more than doubled their numbers, and three completed houses of worship. Three missionaries left, and fifteen entered the State. Without commission or salary one from the extreme front sends back word of a church made ready with twenty members. Two brethren were ordained, another installed. Exclusive of money raised for Sunday schools and incidentals of worship, these little churches averaged about fourteen dollars a member for Christian work. Contributions to this Treasury were $316.78, against $319.86 last year; a slight decrease.

Compared with 1872, the report shows fifty-five churches, against thirty-five; thirty-seven missionaries, against twenty-five; thirty counties supplied with at least one church, against nineteen. "Thus we stand," says the Superintendent, "at this opening of the year—fifty churches are just beginning life, requiring missionary aid; and thirty-seven men prayerfully toiling for the cause they represent—a feeble band to turn this incoming empire into Christian channels. The feeling is growing on us, out of our very impotence, that our only hope is in the 'Lo, I am with you!' Careful authorities put our sure increase this year, by immigration alone, at 150,000. With 65,000 last year we were compelled, doing the least we could, to organize twenty churches. How many for 150,000? Even now a half-dozen fields lie morally wasting; we cannot care for them. Add the eight vacant churches, and these 150,000 immigrants, and you see something of the magnitude of your work in this State alone.

"Does any one expect to carry through one of the greatest and grandest works ever, in all the centuries, laid on the church, without cost and sacrifice? It is as though the culminating hour of the work of redemption had come, and God were throwing the nations together on these fertile plains for it! Oh, to see this tide setting in upon you, and to fear that the church only feels that it does not feel, and cannot bring prayer and consecration to meet the hour! Of machinery we have what we need. The Home Missionary Society—unfettered, and free to adapt itself to every phase of the enlarging work,—planting churches and sending ministers; the Congregational Union, aiding churches to houses of worship; the Congregational Publishing Society providing for our Sunday schools; the Dorcas Societies saying to our missionaries, in most practical ways and in voices sweet with prayer and sympathy, "Be ye warmed and clothed,"—these, together, make a system where nothing seems wanting but an enduing of the whole—societies, churches, missionaries,—with the power from on high. Oh! for prayer and money and men."

THE TERRITORIES.

At the opening of the year the Committee made preparations to extend the work of the Society in the remote and sparsely settled portions of the country. For this purpose the Field Superintendent visited Dakota, Colorado and Wyoming, to make explorations and prepare the way for the re-enforcements that were to be sent to those Territories. But the condition of the Treasury soon became such that these plans could not be carried into full effect. In some of the Territories, however, considerable progress has been made.

Two additional laborers have been sent to Dakota, and several of the most important positions in that Territory have been occupied. One church has been organized, and the way has been prepared for the organization of several others during the present year. The church in Yankton, the capital of the Territory, has passed from the list of the Society's beneficiaries, and is enrolled as the first self-supporting church in Dakota. This region presents strong attractions to the immigrant, and the population is increasing with great rapidity. Urgent appeals have been made by the missionaries there, for helpers in their work, and the Committee hope to send them forth at an early day.

The work of the Society in Colorado, owing to causes frequently referred to in former Reports, has made but little progress for several years. But, since the last anniversary, three missionaries have been sent into that Territory, who commenced their labors in the autumn. One of them is attempting to revive the churches at Georgetown and Empire, which were gathered by the labors of a missionary of this Society who died at his post in 1866. The other two have occupied Greeley, Longmont, and several minor stations on the plain, near the base of the mountains, where colonies from the East have settled. The church at Denver, which was gathered by this Society in 1864, has passed through many vicissitudes; but, having shared in the revival which visited that city during the last winter, it will probably be able to dispense with further aid.

In April, 1872, the Society's Superintendent for California visited Salt Lake City, for the the purpose of reviving, if possible, the mission which was established there in 1865, but was broken up, in the following year, by an outbreak of Mormon fanaticism. The same missionary by whom the church was organized has been recommissioned to labor in this field. It is hoped that the scattered fragments of the church may be gathered, and the structure rebuilt. But the result of the undertaking is yet uncertain.

CALIFORNIA.

Rev. JAMES H. WARREN, San Francisco, Superintendent. Dr. J. W. CLARK, Financial Agent.

The Society has employed in California, during the year, thirty-five missionaries, who have ministered to thirty-three churches and to eight congregations where churches do not exist. Five churches have been organized, with an aggregate membership of forty-three, and six have become self-supporting. One missionary has been installed, three ordained, and one licensed to preach as a candidate for the ministry. Two church edifices have been completed and dedicated, and another was ready to be dedicated at the close of the year. Revivals of religion are reported from four or five fields. The aided churches have raised for their current expenses $20,763, for church debts $2,003, for church building $4,797, for charitable purposes $720, making a total of $28,486. The value of the property held by these congregations amounts to about $90,000. Each of the churches which have become self-sustaining during the year has a commodious house of worship, and two are in possession of pleasant parsonages. The contributions from the State to the Treasury of the Society amount to $1,902.30, in coin, exceeding those of the previous year by $498.30.

The Superintendent speaks of the growing interest of the churches in the work which this Society is performing in that State. He says: "The General Association, at its session in October, discussed the 'New Departure' proposed at Oberlin, and in particular the question—How can the churches be brought into warmer sympathy and cooperation with the Society? A Constitution for a State Home Missionary Society was considered; but, after comparing the prospective work of such an organization with the simple methods already in hand, it was thought best to postpone the scheme for one year, and to work, meanwhile, substantially as before.

The report concludes as follows: "We rejoice over the work done, and well done by our missionaries; but we dare not stop to look at it for congratulation or enjoyment. We are pushed forward. There is a movement, all along the front, and our looking must be ahead. Others may write histories at their leisure; we are in the evolutions and drifts that make them. As I write this report, there are before me seven letters from various sections of this field, demanding the personal visitation of the Superintendent, preparatory to the establishing of churches and the sending of missionaries. Some of them are from places where there is total destitution, and where good churches could be built up and maintained. But, by the side of these letters is a circular from the Bible House to the Superintendents, calling them from the front, because the churches are not making up the Oberlin quota for the war. Had it not been for the margin made by the swinging off of six churches, this circular would have seriously distressed us. But when this margin is filled up, what then? The prosperity of the last year, the full prospects of the present year, with the coming in of more railroads, more immigration, more general confidence of capital and investment, admonish us that now is not the time to sound a retreat. We say nothing about the sharp rivalry of denominationalism. We are not in that business. We care not for its stimulus. It is all we can do to lay foundations where they are needed and where they will abide. There is room enough; and all the hosts may do their work. Retreat! Better, a thousand times, for the churches to speak the Master's own inspiring words, "Go up and possess the land!"

OREGON.

In the last Report the Committee alluded to their plans for the enlargement of their work in Oregon. They regret that they are unable now to report the progress which they then anticipated. No additional laborers have been sent into the field, and two of those whose names appeared in the last Report have left the State. Another, who had just entered upon missionary labor, at several points on the Oregon and California Railroad, did not find sufficient encouragement to continue his labors, and was obliged to abandon the field and the missionary work. The Committee have, however, secured the services of two ministers who have long resided in Oregon. Rev. ELKANAH WALKER, who was formerly a missionary of the A. B. C. F. M., among the Indians, has taken charge of the church in Forest Grove. This church has, for many years, received only such pastoral care as could be bestowed by the professors in the Pacific University. Having now the entire services of a minister, it is expected to advance steadily to self-support. Rev. Dr. ATKINSON, having resigned the pastoral charge of the church in Portland, has been commissioned to perform a general missionary work in the State, for one year. He will visit those communities where he believes that Congregational churches may be gathered and the way prepared for the introduction of additional laborers.

But the same causes which have been adverted to in former Reports, as retarding the work of the Society in Oregon, continue to exist. The growth of the missionary churches is slow; and repeated efforts to occupy new fields have proved unsuccessful. In a few cases foundations that had been laid, with much labor and sacrifice, have been destroyed, and the laborers, after contending for years with the peculiar difficulties incident to this field, have yielded to discouragement and sought other spheres of service. Those who remain are worthy of double honor for their faith and patience and heroism. The Committee are using their best endeavors to strengthen the things that remain, and will advance to the occupancy of other posts whenever Providence shall prepare the way.

CONCLUSION.

We cannot close this review of another year without bringing home to our hearts, and to all that love this Society, the solemn, delightful assurance that the same Divine blessing which has been its honor and glory, and which has made it from the first an instrument for the salvation of tens of thousands, is resting upon it still. Again we record with fervent gratitude what God hath wrought by its hand in establishing and enlarging the church and kingdom of Jesus Christ, our Lord. By his gracious Spirit and favoring providence, he has vindicated its methods and its work at the bar of history, and to the judgment of men. His word, at its mouth, has not returned to him void, but has prospered in the thing whereto he sent it. Going forth at the opening of the year, bearing precious seed, it comes again at the close bringing its sheaves with it. It has planted and watered, and God has given increase. The churches were multiplied, and daily were added unto them of such as should be saved.

In common with all similar evangelizing agencies it has felt the financial pressure on the country, but its receipts from living contributors have still exceeded those of any former year, save one ; and have been so administered that among its large number of missionaries—now almost a thousand—it is believed that while many have consented to sacrifices, there has been no instance of necessary distress, though the season was one of extreme severity. We have occasion to thank God that the stronger churches—the brethren and sisters in those churches, in their different ways—have never yet failed this Society in its hours of greatest need. And they never will. The cause of Home Missions lies too near their hearts, is taken too often, too solemnly, and too tenderly into the social meeting and the closet of secret prayer, has been made holy and beloved by too many sweet sacrifices of children, and often of the "whole living," and is too deeply identified with that blessed Redeemer whom they love, ever to be forgotten or left to languish.

The past year has witnessed the embodiment of a newly aroused missionary zeal throughout the great Interior and Western States in Societies which are now co-operative, and are to be auxiliary to this by which most of their churches were planted or aided through years of weakness.

It is a grateful privilege to welcome so many growing children to the family board ; or, rather, to see so many stalwart sons entering this harvest field. The expanding greatness of the work, multiplying with a startling rapidity far beyond any power yet put into our hands, endears every agency coming to our help. This Parent Society then, gathering up these strong helpers and looking with appealing faith to the Lord of the harvest, begins another year. May the blessing of Almighty God be upon it as never before : upon its missionaries ; its churches ; its outstations and the few sheep in the wilderness ; the thousands and tens of thousands gathered into its Sunday schools ; the tens and hundreds of thousands to whom it will bring the gospel of the mercy of God ;—upon its administration, and the faithful friends who have long ministered to it of their substance and given their sons and daughters to its work !

Oh, that we knew the true magnitude and infinite need of that work ! What Dr. Chalmers urged, with all the eloquence and power of Christian sagacity, for Scotland, we would plead with far greater earnestness and truth as to America. If there—in the very midst of a refined and thoroughly appointed state of society, an enveloping atmosphere of evangelical sentiment and a multitude of ancestral arrangements soliciting popular attention to spiritual things—it was still not safe to rely on the ordinary commercial "laws of demand and supply," but the religious community must band together and use effort and make sacrifice to bring the gospel of Christ home to the masses, and overtake them with its healing and saving power,—carrying it to the people who would not come to it, through every street and alley of her crowded cities, through every glen of her wild mountains, and every valley of her salt friths—that so at last little Scotland might be presented an offering clean and white unto Christ ; how much more clear and convincing must it be to every thoughtful Christian or patriot here—especially in our rising States, where a very melange of nations is flung together without unity or sympathy, without acquaintance or mutual interest, compelled to seek first what they shall eat, crowded with thoughts of material things to an almost absolute exclusion of what is spiritual and invisible and eternal in the heavens,—it will not do to rely on the ordinary commercial "laws of need and supply ;" and that if this mighty population is ever to be overtaken with the gospel, and America—this home of transcendent forces —presented unto Christ clean and white, there must be a banding together of those that know him, and sacrifices such as the world has never seen! May his Spirit endue his church with power for it! Then "As the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations."

RELATIONS OF AUXILIARIES, ECCLESIASTICAL BODIES, ETC.

State and other large Auxiliaries.

Most of the State Missionary Societies were in existence before the formation of the National Society, and some of them were among the earliest organized efforts in our country for sending the gospel to the destitute. They have voluntarily connected themselves as Auxiliaries with the American Home Missionary Society, from a conviction that greater unity of plan and efficiency in action would thereby be promoted.

The terms by which such Auxiliaries—acting on the principles of the Parent Society, undertaking the supply of the destitute within their own bounds, and paying over their surplus funds to the Parent Institution—are connected with the Parent Society, are such as to secure the following objects, viz:

First—The Auxiliary is not superseded or overshadowed by the National Institution, but on the contrary, is invigorated and sustained by connection with it.

This is secured by the provision that the Auxiliary is the sole agency for this cause that operates on its field. It controls all appointments in the State to which it belongs. From it alone, so far as its means will allow, the feeble churches receive assistance. Thus a direct relation and strong attachment are cherished toward it, in the hearts of the ministers and churches.

Again—While the local operations of the Auxiliary are thus encouraged and sustained, its connection with the Parent Society is such as to awaken an interest in the destitute beyond its own limits, and afford facilities for reaching them. It is not only a Society for local purposes, but it also is a branch of the National Society, and, as such, has the control of all agencies for the collection of funds within its own field, and can direct the manner in which its surplus resources shall be expended beyond its own limits. Thus, the State and other large Auxiliaries are not merely organizations to help the Parent Society; they are integral parts of it, bound together in one whole by a common interest in and free access, through the Parent Society, to the great field to be occupied, and governed by the same general principles and rules in carrying on the work.

Those State Missionary Societies which have not yet assumed an Auxiliary relation to the National Society, co-operate with it on the same principles which apply to ecclesiastical bodies, acting through Committees of Missions.

Committees of Misssions, etc.

The American Home Missionary Society has ever regarded the ecclesiastical bodies as the appropriate judges of the standing of their own ministers, and of the wants of the church s in their connection. Accordingly, the commission issued to each missionary requires that his commission be acceptable to the ministerial body of his denomination, within whose bounds he is appointed to labor. The various ecclesiastical bodies in those States where Missionary Societies do not exist, are invited to appoint each a Com- mittee of Missions from its own members, to receive applications from its churches, and suggest to the Society the action proper in each case. Such a Committee constitutes the official source to which reference can be had for information and advice, in all matters pertaining to missions in the connection to which it belongs. This mode of co-operation has been preferred by numerous ecclesiastical bodies, from the first formation of the Society. It guarantees to the churches, that their respective claims shall be fairly considered, with all the advantage of having the indorsement of the body to which they belong. The advice of such a Committee, acting in the name and by the direction of the ecclesiastical body to which they belong, is regarded as the highest authority in matters pertaining to the standing of ministers and churches in their connection, and has the same influence with the Society as would that of a Board of Agency appointed by itself.

There is one limitation to this influence, however, which ought to be stated. Should any ecclesiastical body so far swerve from the principles of truth and gospel order, as not to retain the fellowship and confidence of the great body of the churches co-operating in the Society, that fact would cause its recommendations not to be respected, as a basis of action, by the Executive Committee.

As cases may occur in which feeble churches may not be aware of the existence of any Committee of Missions or State Missionary Society, through which to apply for aid, a general provision is made, that an application may be vouched for by any two ministers, of known and approved standing, of their own denomination, who can certify to the facts of the case. If the information thus given is not sufficient, other facts are sought by the Executive Committee, with as little delay as practicable, from the most authentic sources from which they can be obtained.

Such, briefly, are the relations of the American Home Missionary Society to the various organs through which the community seeks to act out its missionary feeling. It will be seen that this plan secures the united action, in the missionary work, of those whose views of doctrine and church order admit of co-operation, and whose interests in the great field are essentially the same. This combination insures a homogeneous policy as to the manner and amount of appropriations, and the qualifications of missionaries; it has discouraged sectional feelings, and diffused throughout each part an interest in all the rest; and thus has formed ties between the West and East, along which has passed from the latter to the former a silent and invisible current of moral influences more valuable, if possible, than all pecuniary grants. At the same time the connection of the Parent Society with the various associations that act with it is such as to secure to them entire freedom in the missionary work, in their respective spheres, and an influence beyond them, in cultivating the waste places of our common country.

Superintendents.

Besides preaching to the destitute and taking up contributions for Home Missions, the Superintendents of the American Home Missionary Society exercise a general supervision of the operations of the Society within their respective fields. By correspondence and personal visitation they ascertain the wants of the destitute; assist them to obtain the preaching of the gospel; and instruct and encourage them to develop their own means for its support. They receive applications for aid, and make such preliminary examination as may be necessary before submitting them for the action of the Executive Committee; and in other ways labor to insure a judicious and economical application of the Society's funds. The Society has in its employ no merely collecting Agents, nor any whose services are not required for other purposes in the region where they labor.

Applications for Aid.

Congregations needing and desiring aid in supporting the gospel, will find it to their advantage to make application at the earliest possible day, after engaging their minister. They are requested, in their applications, to make FULL STATEMENTS OF THEIR CONDITION AND PROSPECTS, AND OF THE REASONS FOR GRANTING THEIR REQUEST. They are desired, also, to furnish the following particulars, viz.:

Population of the place.
Names of the church or churches, and preaching stations.
Number of communicants.
Average number of attendants on public worship.
Denomination and size of contiguous congregations.
Names and distances of the nearest Congregational churches.
Minister's full name and post-office address: Town, County, State.
Whether he resides on his field of labor.
Whether he has any other calling than that of the ministry.
Whether he is now, or is expected to become the pastor of the church.
His credentials.
The number of persons composing his family.
Total amount of salary proposed.
Amount pledged by the people, and how secured.
Whether the minister has, also, the use of a parsonage.
Whether aid is expected from any other source.
The least amount that will suffice from the A. H. M. S.
The amount received from the A. H. M. S. last year.
Whether a less amount will probably be needed next year.
Amount contributed to the A. H. M. S. last year.
Date of the desired commission.

The application should be signed by the officers of the church, and by the trustees or a committee of the congregation.

If the ecclesiastical body with which the church is connected has a "Committee of Missions" to act in its behalf, the members of this Committee are the proper persons to certify the statements of the applicants, the standing of the minister, and the prospects of usefulness in the place where his services are desired; and the application should be sent to them for their indorsement and recommendation. If no such "Committee of Missions" exists, the application should be indorsed by two or more neighboring clergymen, acquainted with the facts. If no church or congregation is yet gathered, applicants will take the course here indicated, as far as practicable.

Applications, after being properly indorsed and recommended, should be sent to the Superintendent (or Secretary of the Auxiliary) for the region where the applicants reside.

As a general rule, appropriations are for twelve months from the date of the application; at the end of which, if further aid be needed, a new application must be made, containing all the particulars above stated, and indorsed and recommended in like manner. Each congregation applying for renewed aid should furnish, also, the certificate of the missionary, that it has fulfilled its previous pledges for his support.

The address of the Society's Superintendents and the Secretaries of its Auxiliaries will be found on the cover of its Reports and of The Home Missionary.

SERMON

At the Forty-Seventh Anniversary.

By Rev. Theodore D. Woolsey, D.D., LL.D., of New Haven, Ct.

YEA, WOE IS UNTO ME, IF I PREACH NOT THE GOSPEL!—1 Corinthians, ix. 16, last clause.

YEA, SO HAVE I STRIVED TO PREACH THE GOSPEL, NOT WHERE CHRIST WAS NAMED, LEST I SHOULD BUILD ON ANOTHER MAN'S FOUNDATION.—Romans, xv. 20.

IN the first of these verses the apostle says, that the trust of preaching the gospel had been put into his hands, so that a woe would rest on him if he should prove faithless. In the other verse he tells us what rule he observed, in selecting the fields for his missionary work. His plan was not to go to cities where others had already spread the good news of God, and gathered converts together in Christian communities, but to places which had lain outside of and beyond the gospel's march. This rule he speaks of in the words "yea, so have I striven to preach," which in a more exact sense denote that he considered it a point of honor to preach not where Christ was acknowledged by men as their Savior, but where, hitherto, the news of him had not reached. He did not want to interfere in the labors of another, even though his apostolical office might give him such authority; his delicate perception of what was due towards others made him shrink from such intrusion; and his zeal spurred him on still westward, so as to bring Christ near to new hearers in all the lands of the vast Roman empire.

It seems to me that these verses contain subject of thought proper for the management of Christian missions in our country. Especially ought the churches represented in this Society to feel that a woe will rest upon them, if they abate at all in their purpose or zeal to send the gospel to destitute places beyond their own borders. And in doing so, it becomes them and their agents to inquire where there is most destitution,—not to build on foundations already laid down, but to build where Christ is not yet known; to follow the apostle alike in his feeling of responsibility, and his honorable determination not to intrude in any way into a field already occupied by other servants of Christ.

I. And, first, a woe will rest upon us as a community of churches, if we preach not the gospel beyond our own borders. There are two great fields into which all the indications of duty call us—the foreign and the home field. I do not intend to include the first in what I have to say on the present occasion. Every consideration, which can be urged for preaching the gospel as a work of love to mankind and of fidelity to Christ, points equally in both directions. Our churches were the first on this side of the water that awoke to the faith that the time was fully come, for the unchristianized world to hear, and for us to send, the gospel. The great Society which was the offspring of that faith is now, after more than sixty years, successfully doing its world-work and shows no signs of decrepitude, but many of vigorous manhood. There can be no jar or jealousy between the two great organizations sustained by our churches. Every new center of religious light planted by the Home Missionary Society, is to be a place of prayer and a source of supply for the heathen. If Congregationalists lose their faith that Christianity is the destined religion of mankind, they must lose also their faith that the new parts of this country can become parts of a strong Christian commonwealth. If we were to pour all our money into one treasury and send it to the feeble churches at home, letting the foreign missions wither and die, such a step would ere long cripple the resources of the Home Missionary Society itself. Whatever we say, therefore, of one part of this great subject will apply to the other.

Now within the field which our own land offers we are called on as a community of churches to make the gospel known, and a woe will rest upon us, as a denomination, if we obey not the call. This will appear, first: if we consider that such missions are necessary, and especially so in our circumstances, for the proper balance and unfolding of religious character.

If Paul, when he had believed in Christ, had not been explicitly called by the Spirit to preach to the Gentiles, if he had asked counsel only of the monitor within, with no express directions of his Lord, his path of duty, as we look on him, as a man and a convert, would seem to have been perfectly plain. Suppose he had tried to live in solitary contemplation for years, supporting his soul on the delicious joys and elevating thoughts of his new hope, how long could such a kind of religious life have given him satisfaction? Even if he could have avoided taking the question of duty into his mind, would not the instinctive feelings of his nature have taught him that a man, ushered as he was in a marvelous way into the knowledge of the gospel, was not his own but Christ's, and that this change, if nothing else, qualified him, with his talents and learning, to go to Jew and Gentile and tell them in whom he believed and why he believed. If he had chosen any other course, it would have told upon his Christian life through inefficiency, through sceptical doubts, through a loss of personal comfort. So it is with every Christian. If the active principles do not go along at equal pace with the convictions of the soul, there will result a one-sided, self-centered character, an incapacity to understand the gospel in its compass and greatness, a stunted growth of the highest Christian qualification, a proportionate want of peace and joy. So it is also with a church, and a body of churches. It may be, indeed, that a country or an age is not in a condition to undertake large works of good in remote, untilled fields; it may be that political forms cripple the energies of a people, so that the man or the church has no consciousness of strength equal to the needs of the kingdom of Christ in the world; although even then how many works of mercy and purifying influence might be done which would prepare for more favorable times and more difficult or distant labors! But our circumstances are far different from all this. Unbounded liberty of movement, ceaseless calls for help, a limitless spread of population, resources in the old States adequate to vastly more than has been undertaken by any body of Christians, all these and other loud voices at once summon us to a great, earnest work of good, and tell us that there will be woe to us if we preach not the gospel. It is said that weak churches in the old States, churches growing weaker, because the strong and the young go off into newer homes, demand our first care. So perhaps they do, and this is an important part of the work of this Society and of its Auxiliaries. If the burden of such churches is all our shoulders can carry, well and good. But let us remember that we in our individual churches must grow by the diffusive power of our life and activity. The concentrated power is not enough for ourselves or for the world. We may depend upon it that the Christian spirit was never quenched by feeling the claims on us of those for whom Christ died. We must not, indeed, let our spirit evaporate in benevolent undertakings carried on by others, we must not feel that if we give a tithe of all we have to religious movements, we are doing all we ought. That would be fatal. But on the other hand it would be fatal to our growth as persons, and as churches, if we contented ourselves with going on the way to heaven ourselves in all quiet, and putting forth no endeavors for that spread of Christ's kingdom which is precious in his eyes. Keep up the proportion of the two sides of character and you ensure the steady, even growth in goodness of all churches which partake in the movement.

But, again: the common interest of our churches in so noble a work as that of the Home Missionary Society, is a bond of fraternity between them.

There is eminent need of such bonds among Congregationalists, because our essence consists in the independence of the local church. But independence, with all its advantages, will be full of evils, if some spiritual union do not bring together those whose rights keep them apart. If we in all our churches adhere to the rigid notion of independency, we have a denomination of separate atoms without points of contact, isolated and devoid of mutual sympathy. If the spirit of brotherhood moves among those atoms so far that we seek and respect each other's advice, that is well, it is Christian; but how occasional, how exceptional, such times of mutual helpfulness are, I need not point out. If we go yet further and set up Conferences of churches, in which the lay element takes its appropriate part, that is a step farther towards good, and it augurs well for the future that of late this truly religious and fraternal intercourse is encouraged and has spread. We may go farther still, and gather ministers and delegates in imposing triennial Councils, bringing East and West together, and showing to the other bodies of Christians that we have some instinct or tendency towards organization. But what can such bodies do? If they make creeds or canons, no one is bound by them; to obey them as coming from a church authority, would be to renounce the principles of Congregationalism; to issue them under the sanction of the opinions of the wisest men of the denomination, would be to give advice on which religious newspapers and reviews would sit in judgment, and by which no single church would be bound. They might, in fact, cause division of feeling and judgment between those who dread authority and those who want more union.

But there is a more excellent bond between the churches, which indeed requires a high state of religion that its uniting power may have its perfect work, but which, in all the changing conditions of practical religion, cannot but be fraught with good. That bond and sense of brotherhood arises, when the churches keep in view together one great province or department of the kingdom of God; when their hearts beat and their prayers arise together for its success; when their gifts flow together in one common channel; and reports from the sons whom they send forth come back to gladden and encourage them all!—then it is that they are conscious that they are one body. Such joint spiritual movement for a specific object helps them to throw off their sense of isolation and to recognize the community of churches so co-operating, as a great fraternity who are bound by a common tie of hopes, aim and efforts, all centering on one great work approved by the common Savior. No single member of a community of churches ever stood alone, trusting in the spirit within, as sufficient for the complete unfolding of character, without suffering loss. It became conceited, or one-sided, or stagnant. But in such association, he who gives receives back more. The intelligence, the feeling of strength, the activity of benevolence, the discipline of judgment, the sense of unity, are so many rewards, which bear the fruit of religious prosperity for the future. That body of Christians which in the pure spirit of the gospel blesses them that are without is blessed within; it loses nothing, it gains everything.

I add here that, if the churches of our order should grow cold in the work of Home Missions, or abridge their efforts, their past history would rebuke them; they would abjure their old character. Ours is an honorable record, at least if measured by the efforts and zeal of other branches of the Christian body. I will not go back to the times when the "apostle to the Indians," only twenty-five years after the first settlement of New England, showed the Christian love of the colonists at the era of their poverty and their precarious existence, nor will I stop to speak of other missions of an early day. For Western Home Missions, in their proper sense, there was no opportunity until the latter part of the last century. It is a thing to think of with joy that, in 1774, the General Association of Connecticut took measures for sending missionaries "to the back settlements in the wilderness to the north-westward." I use their words which point towards western Vermont and part of northern New York. Then came the Revolutionary war, with its burdens and its drains of men for the service, and its fears of hostile Indians; but in 1788 the subject was resumed; and in 1789 steps were taken to organize the General Association into a missionary society, whose objects were "to christianize the heathen in North America, and to support and promote Christian knowledge in the United States." For the Indians at the West little was done, but the work among the emigrants was great and timely. The gospel was preached to them at a time when the existence of religion among their settlements was at stake; and the laborers sent out into this vineyard by the Connecticut Society "were one of the leading instruments in the land for spreading and securing the sway of religion." The mode of conducting the missions was singularly primitive—if I may so say, apostolical. There were two descriptions of missionaries—those who went forth to make the new regions their homes, and settled ministers of the State who gave themselves for four or six months to this vocation, receiving at one time nine dollars a week, of which four were paid to their substitutes in their own parishes, and five were kept for themselves and their horses, as they traveled through the wilderness. For they were not stationary; they spread the good news of God from place to place; they encouraged the Christian people who had gone forth in their poverty from the Eastern homes; they gave a word of warning to men in their sins and passed on, that as many as possible might be reached by their preachings. The resources for this work were drawn from annual contributions made principally on the first Sunday of May, and from the profits of the "Evangelical Magazine,"—sources which together yielded in the end a fund of $44,000, which is still preserved and aids in the support of eight or ten missionaries in the Western States.

I rejoice to be able to add that there was no spirit of the denomination in all this. The churches founded by these early missions were left under the sway of Presbyterianism by the "plan of union," and thus, in the event, that powerful body of Christians was spread, by the liberal unsectarian feelings of Congregationalists, among descendants of New Englanders and members of Congregational churches.

At length this Society was organized, with wider aims and a larger constituency, uniting the two religious bodies of which I have just spoken. It adopted as its Auxiliaries the Home Missionary Societies in New England, and the union was long, peaceful and happy. It was honorable for both denominations that they could work together with so little jarring and jealousy; that they could cast their money into a common treasury, uncertain whether the government by the single churches or the government by sessions and presbyteries would be the result of the joint action.

At length a dark time came; theological fears and theological freedom could not act together; the plan of union was broken up; the great denomination itself, which had two forms of thought within its boundaries, suffering a disruption. The result was to intensify the denominational feeling; jealousies arose between the Congregationalists and the members of that Presbyterian body which still supported the American Home Missionary Society; the latter preferred to carry on their work of evangelization by ecclesiastical boards; and thus this Society became a Congregationalist organ, in regard to which, thenceforward, the question was not that of disbursing contributions, in an equitable division, among the missionaries of two constituencies, but that of doing the more good, if possible, by dividing the work. And so, if there is anything of responsibility arising from the fact that this Society is left to our Congregational churches, like a piece of property in the partition of an estate, it has become exclusively their Society—it is in an important sense their inheritance. If there is anything of stimulus in having a specific work, a field with definite boundaries, this is their field. If there is anything in ancestral example to awaken interest and to act on the sense of Christian honor, we have a charge and a trust put into our hands for the benefit of those same regions for which our predecessors worked and prayed, when they sent their sons to subdue the forest, but would not let them go without the gospel.

And this remark leads us to say that a woe will rest on the churches represented in this Society, if they do not provide for the wants of the emigrants from their borders who have sought new homes in the West. I do not mean that these should be our only care, but that every consideration of Christian wisdom and Christian feeling ought to bring these brethren according to the flesh before our minds, just as the apostle Paul preached first to the Jews in his journeyings, and then to the Gentiles. To leave a Christian home as many of these emigrants do; to lose the social orderly influences of a Christian parish; to go where settlements are made and townships filled up, not on any principle of affinity, but as it may happen; to find one's self in a place where there can be no church because there are so many sects, and no harmony, because there is so much self-will; to be placed near broken-down Christian professors who once held their own in a poor way where religion was popular, and now under the shadow of temptation have lost all principle, perhaps all faith, and have learned to neglect institutions, to make light of religion, to despise their godly forefathers—such fearful risks follow the adventurous children of the older States, as they go, they know not whither nor among whom. Young men as they leave college life are often told that now, with almost entire independence, they are going forth into untried scenes, in which their principles will be proved and assailed. But such new comers into society have for the most part principles of order; they live under the eye of a public opinion which they fear or from which they hope; they have a multitude of good influences around them. And yet they often yield to evil and destroy their characters. How much more are they put into a crucible and tried as by fire, who with less experience and less security in themselves against corruption, meet corruption in its worst forms with few or no helps against it. And what will the next generation do, the little ones, who remember no house of prayer, no good lives of the old home, who are trained up in practical heathenism? Such is a feebly drawn picture of what often happens, of what would of course happen, if the benevolent guidance of Christian love took them not by the hand and led them where they would be safe,—or rather, went not before them, keeping dangers to the soul out of their way, and giving them a kind reception at their journey's end. Is it not obvious then that the older parts of the land stand towards the newer as parents towards children? Will there not be a woe on the churches represented here, if they resemble the ostrich, "which leaveth her eggs in the earth," "and forgetteth that the foot may crush them, or that the wild beast may break them," which "is hardened against her young ones as though they were not hers," "because God hath deprived her of wisdom"?

As long as emigration shall continue from the Eastern Congregational churches, so long our field is marked out for us, as by a guide-post set up by the divine hand. We are guardians for our relatives and friends, until they are rich enough, and have power of combination enough, to provide for their own spiritual wants. Perhaps a time may come when what we call the West may have the energy, the ability, the religious strength to preside over and to give security for the laying of the foundations of Christian life in the great regions yet to be peopled. When that time shall come, our part will be a secondary one in this our work of evangelization, and we may turn our benevolent thought, our effort, our liberality, into other channels. But as yet we have a principal part to act. It would be as great a crime to stop the work of the churches in this direction now, as it would have been to neglect or decline it at first. The fidelity of the past makes it easier and more hopeful now; the fidelity of the present and of the near future will facilitate it still more. At length those districts, into which the children of our churches have gone, will reach a full majority. May they have more will, as they may have better opportunity, to extend the work than their fathers had, or the Societies had, which their fathers originated.

But still another important consideration shows that a woe will rest on the churches represented here, if they are slack and heartless in this field of Home Missions. By so doing they will fail to apply the great remedy to the existing and impending evils of the country. Our political evils are to be mainly removed by leavening the land with the principles of uprightness taught by the gospel. The relations between the political morals of a country and its religious welfare are very intimate,—far more so than they have imagined who have been content to stand aloof from political life and to save themselves by faith in Christ. There is no possible separation between the great causes that shape the character and determine the destiny of any land; and above all of a free country, where political duty knocks at every man's door, and political immorality corrupts every party, yes, and every voter, unless he resists its influence. For a free country is the soil where the seeds of good and evil sow themselves most rapidly and most widely. How religion must suffer, when men vote for bad men, and defend bad measures of their party, and make compromises with evil, and are on terms of friendship with the dishonorable and the time-serving, it is needless that I should show. Is it not evident that freedom cannot take care of itself, and that, when corrupt, its tendency is to corrupt religion and morals, to divorce religion from morals, to give to the world examples of Christians in high places that lose their honor and their truth. We have a painful experience at present,—a more painful one than has ever fallen to the lot of the United States, or of the Colonies out of which the great Republic grew. We thought, when the late war was over, that the path of peace would be smooth and upright and upward. The war was no plaything, handled with frivolity and sport, but prayers earnest, continual, accompanied it on its course; and ennobling self-sacrifices were endured, and burdens were borne, and every lofty sentiment was excited that lifts men out of their wonted dull vulgar life. All shared the emotion. Bad men felt that God was nigh. Good men steeled their faith and their principles in the heat of the tribulation. Was it possible that there should not be an era better than any before since we called ourselves one people? But only twice the years of the war have elapsed since its close, and where are we now? Can we travel back over these years of peace, or take account of the present condition of the land without profound shame? Perhaps we may explain to ourselves the causes of this degeneracy, and perhaps not. But whatever they have been, is there nothing sad in the apparent loss of the nobility of national character which the war fostered? Is there nothing dangerous, nothing frightful, in the decay of the honor and truth of public men, who have carried the banners of parties and told the people what they ought to do? Is there nothing alarming in the general want of confidence in the law-makers and judges and executive officers, nothing demoralizing in the indiscriminate charges against them, which bring the bad and good down to one level, and make the unreflecting think that all men have their price? And what is to be the result of the cupidity, the impatience to be rich, the speculations, the combinations of speculators, the unrighteous influences on governments and legislators, which leak out all the while, as if the vats of secret iniquity were full even to bursting? Men talk of dangers from the operative class, but there is no real permanent danger, when the class of employers and the class of educated men have sound thoughts and principles of uprightness. Social institutions cannot topple over, they cannot be undermined, if there is moral health, energy, a fear of God, in those who should be supports of order and righteousness. If, indeed, those signs of evil which grow out of an ill-adjusted financial system stood alone, we might hope for a cure from some local and partial remedy; but when we see the decay of character, the decay of family feeling and of family purity going on at an equal pace; when we see that crimes of violence and crimes of fraud keep company; when we see the evidences of unthrift, extravagance, love of show, accumulating from year to year; we may well ask what is to be the end of these things?

"Can such things be,
And overcome us, like a summer's cloud,
Without our special wonder."

But it is asked what has religion, what have missions to do with all this? Why not keep your own hearts pure and your lives pure, and shine upon all this evil with a serene healthy influence? Why not send your missionaries to those that need them, and let the evils of the land work out their own cure? The plain answer is that social corruptions act upon individuals, even upon individual Christians; that when the weight of example and power is on the wrong side, the benumbing influence is felt in every log-house, on every farm of a free country; so that it is harder to keep before the souls of believers a Christlike standard, and harder to make men believe that religion is a reality, and harder to reclaim men from a coyetous, worldly life. If you could keep out examples of political men bribing and receiving bribes, of men growing rich by cheating their neighbors, of dishonest combinations to plunder large cities, of adulteries, murders and divorces,—if you could keep the knowledge of such things out from the still valleys and lonely streams where villagers gather to hear the preacher and sing hymns to Christ, well and good; religion might then go on its way making its converts, building its churches, purifying and fortifying its disciples, before the corruptions from afar and from the high places could invade these abodes of peace. But evil examples move in a free country with a free press and free movement of travel, as fast as good ones, and there is no exclusive province of sobriety, good order and integrity. The West then, in fact all the field where our work lies, is equally open to evil with the older States. The new State of Kansas certainly shows that righteousness and truth have not there the exclusive possession.

What we need then to do through our missions is not simply to carry men through a process of conversion, and set up Sunday schools and prayer meetings and temperance societies;—something more is wanted to correct evil and to keep down evil. It is to raise the standard of a Christian life, to imbue the people with a conviction that a disciple of Christ must be a man who abhors evil, who has not merely that side of Christ in his character which turned with pity on the erring, but that side also which turned with indignation on the Pharisees who were covetous and false. Our missionaries ought, in order to be equal to the wants of the time, to have something of the old Hebrew prophets in them. There must be more of sternness in the character of our religion itself. We must feel that he who loves God hates sin, and that the love and the hatred are proportionate. There is much in the character and life of those who are reached by our missions, especially in the West, to encourage the hope that they may become a principal support of truth and righteousness in the country. They are placed in that condition in which men see that labor is the source of all production; they are likely to have simple tastes; the are independent and manly. Our farmers in the West were saviors of the land, more than any other class, in the late war. If they can be thoroughly christianized, with their courage, manliness and honesty they may act an equally important part in purifying politics and social life, and then in freeing the religious character of the land from contamination. I hope to hear loud voices from them, which will make men of evil, East and West, quail: "We abhor you, ye political corruptionists, ye men of bribes, ye managers of parties, who want to see knavery in high places of trust that you may be respectable. We can stand changes of party, but we cannot stand falsehood and want of principle. We must have good men for our leaders, or we will overturn all existing parties, and consign you to your appropriate disgrace."

II. But we turn from these aspects of our subject, to look for a moment at the single point which remains. The apostle strove to preach Christ where he was not known, he wished to build not on another's foundation, but to lay his edifice upon new ground. In so doing he might leave errors behind him. Jewish teachers, enlightened only in part, might follow in his steps to spoil what he had begun so well. It could not be expected that his heathen converts would all at once understand what was the true liberty or the true morality of the new religion. Might it not be said that a community thoroughly christianized—as for instance at Corinth and Ephesus—might do ten times the good that could be done by an unintelligent, unreflecting, undisciplined body of disciples? And was any man in the world at that time more fit to do just this work of edifying, of expanding an infant church into a manly, noble, earnest body of believers, from which in a few years plans for the salvation of the Gentiles would shoot forth on every side? That Paul could have done good in this way of remaining as the guardian and trainer of a church in its minority, until it should reach perfect manhood, we cannot doubt. That just this is the office and the most worthy office of thousands of Christ's ministers, is equally unquestionable. How then shall we explain the conduct of so wise a man? Was it not to be ascribed to his confidence in the gospel itself, as a seminal principle in a heart and in a place,—that the Spirit of life with his charismata, and his sanctifying grace, was sure to attend on the opening of the gospel to the men who knew it not before? The gospel could grow up even among weeds in this new soil; it had a reforming and a transforming energy, and so he could leave it—as a general may leave a captured fortress with a feeble garrison in his rear, because conquest, onward movement, is the true policy for the time, rather than thorough subjugation. And as for the man of strife who might teach his disciples to suspect him, to question his doctrines, his noble heart could say, "What then? . . . every way, . . . Christ is preached, and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice." These new teachers agreed with him more than they differed from him; Christ was the common foundation for both; therefore, though he might be disappointed and perhaps chagrined, as far as he and his relations to his converts were concerned, still he felt that these disciples, should they forget him, need not forget Christ. And that alone was important.

Is not, now, this conduct of the apostle so far an example to us as to guide our movements in regard to a choice of a field for our missionary work? It is of small importance for the kingdom of God that a mission planted by our care should fall into the hands of Presbyterians or any other body of Protestant Christians, but it is of importance that as fast as the stream of settlements pours westward, so fast we should fill up a vacant place, where, but for such timely help, heathenism would be sure to enter. If we could do nothing but act as pioneers, like our forefathers, at the beginning of the century, we should then prepare the way for other bodies of Christians to bring their mature vigor, and increased means to the aid of the gospel. Congregationalists have not been apt to build on other men's foundations: their praise has been to have begun the work of Evangelization, of Home Missions and of Foreign Missions, in soil before untouched and neglected. Perhaps it has been a fault of the members of our churches that they have passed so readily into other denominations; but if it be a fault, it is one leaning towards the side of virtue. It grows out of the independence of the individual, and out of that clear comprehension of the gospel which separates the accidents from the essentials of Christianity. In this way they have been leavening Christian bodies with intelligence, freedom, energy; and have shown that the old Puritan principles, which led to a separation from the mother church in England, can, in an altered state of things, lead their descendents to unite with other churches, wherever the pure gospel is found. It is not fidelity, then, to the genius of our denomination to try to get proselytes from abroad, but we show our true nature when we fraternize with Christians who have already occupied the soil. So other bodies of Christians should do also, in places where our churches are already planted; but whether they do or not, ought no more to influence our action than the apostle Paul ought to have stopped and asked, whether those who tried to supplant him would have been glad if he had come to build on their foundations.

The proselyting spirit is ever an odious one, and it is always dangerous to the interests of religion in those who are moved by it, as well as in those who fall under their influence. I know no more unlovely feature in modern Christianity than, when a Christian Society has sent its ministers to a vacant field and churches are beginning to prosper, for another sect to invade the field on the plea of superior right to preach and better church authority. Witness that interloping, intrusive attempt in the Sandwich Islands, after the news of the conversion of a people had gladdened the hearts of Christians through the world. Was it not a shameful thing that there came thither a dignitary of a foreign church, expressly to take advantage of the self-denials of those who had proclaimed the Word there with weeping, to reap that he had not sown and gather that he had not strawed? He might indeed say that the missionaries did not come from a church, but only from a sectarian body. As between Catholics and Protestants such a plea might avail, but in this case its only strength lay in a bigotry which was more unjustifiable than that which in Paul's days required obedience to the Jewish rites in order to salvation.

But still more inexcusable than this is that denominational spirit that finds a weak church planted in a western village, and, because there is a handful of persons who formerly were within its pale, plants another weaker church by its side, to compete with it on the principles of mercantile rivalry, and to be counted upon the registers of the denomination as an addition to the effective force of the kingdom of Christ. I absolve great Christian bodies from active blame in many of such cases. The blame is generally due to some agent who is out of notice. But let all Christian bodies who believe that Christ's church is not confined within their own narrow bounds, set up a rule in such cases, that, where the gospel is preached, and there is a stated ministry adequate for the present wants of the place, they will pass that place by, rejoicing to be able to go beyond it and spread the good news of God to others more in need. Let Christians be told, when they go as emigrants into thinly settled towns—where probably there will be persons educated in half a dozen Protestant bodies,—if there be a church there, to join it and strengthen it all they can; or if there be none, to unite in any feasible union of Christ's followers. Who, on a desolate coast, where shipwrecked voyagers were cast, would not accept of some plan of government unlike that of his own choice, to secure justice and protect social interests, until something more permanent could grow up? On the same principle, for the preservation of the spiritual life, ought all to concur, with the largest charity, in the endeavor to plant a church to which they will pledge their loyalty, at least until the time when more than one strong church would not be superfluous.

A desire, like the apostle Paul's, to spread the gospel in places as yet unreached by it, meets a pressing want, as all must admit, in this country. Nowhere since the apostle's days did population diffuse itself so fast, and nowhere, probably, since the beginning of the world did such a mixture of races, religions, irreligions, appear, as is to be seen in a vast number of the new settlements. The assimilative power of our institutions, the enlightening influences of our system of schools, the fact that differences of nationality and language disappear in the second generation, owing to the dispersion of foreigners,—these causes bring all within the same town boundaries into a general uniformity of life and thinking on all subjects except religion. On that alone men differ essentially, and it is an honor to our nature that innocent prejudices partake of the importance of this greatest of human interests. But in the case of those foreign settlers, when they have not been bent sideways by irreligious teaching at home, there is much to hope. They are not hardened by long rejection of the gospel; they have often a certain confiding simplicity of character; old habits make them long for the outward forms, at least, of the gospel. These destitute ones next to the descendants of the Pilgrims demand our care. Whether our denomination with its thoughtfulness and precision of dogmas, its want of forms, its inorganic nature,—whether this is to be the best instrument in God's hands to bring the emigrants of this description to Christ, may be doubted. But whatever Protestant body is best adapted for this great work, may it know its calling, and fulfill it; may it have success, may it have the strength which will attend on doing such a work for God!

I have full confidence that this Society, which now may be called venerable, and has had for a long time approved habits of action, will follow in substance the principles and the rule of the apostle. That a spirit of sectarian proselytism will invade it and the churches which support it, I cannot believe. Its character as a voluntary Society, forbids that the ecclesiastical feeling—to which "church boards" are exposed—should usurp the place of the Christian feeling. There may be evils in its exclusively voluntary character, and there are some who would mingle with this essential element a certain amount of denominational control. But whatever shall be attempted in this direction will be only to bring the Society into nearer relations to the churches, to make them feel a nearer interest in it and a larger responsibility for its prosperity. Hitherto it has been blessed and a blessing. Its affairs have been conducted wisely. Its general principle of helping those feeble churches which help themselves, commends itself to all and is justified by experience. Its missionaries, as a body, are devout, self-denying, intelligent men, who ought to be held in all honor. Its success up to this year may be gathered from the following brief statement.

The contributions in 47 years have been $6,547,150; the churches organized, about 3,500; the stations occupied, more than 6,500; the churches raised to self-support, 1,800; the number admitted, as communicants, into the churches, 230,000.

The number of missionaries commissioned during the present year is 951; of whom 312 have labored in New England, 49 in the Middle, and 587 in the Western States. The additions to the churches have been 5,725. More than 74,000 pupils have been taught in Sabbath schools, and 2,145 congregations have been supplied with the ministry of the word.

Have we not reason to thank God for such a measure of success, and to take courage? Ought we not to feel that so much success pledges us for the future, and makes us the more guilty if we do not fulfill our trust? We have undertaken a work to be measured not by years but by generations, which has outlasted the lives of its earliest friends and its older officers—one of whom, its wise and excellent senior Secretary has been recently removed by death—but which, if our churches are loyal to their Divine Master, will be imperishable itself; or, at least, will not cease, until through the whole field where our work lies, churches of Christ, strong and self-supporting, shall have no further need of our assistance.

DIRECTORS FOR LIFE,

CONSTITUTED SINCE APRIL 1, 1870.

The number of Directors and Members for Life has become so large that the annual publication of their names is a serious tax upon the Treasury. As those who receive the Annual Reports are supposed to preserve them for reference, it is thought expedient to publish the list only once in five years. The names of those constituted Directors or Members for Life previous to April 1, 1870, were printed in the Report for that year, and the entire list will be republished in the Report for 1875.
